

Budget law kills 'file and suspend' strategy for singles, too

By Kathleen Pender November 2, 2015 Updated: November 2, 2015 3:26pm

5

Photo: Patrick Semansky, Associated Press

The Social Security Administration's main campus in Woodlawn, Md. The budget law that President Obama signed on Monday kills the "file and suspend" Social Security claiming strategy.

The budget law that President Obama signed Monday kills the "file and suspend" Social Security claiming strategy, not only for married couples but also for individuals.